

Ryan Ellis preaching to students

Ryan Ellis: One day while leaving a school, a teacher said to me "Salamat sa mogandan bolita," which means, "Thank you for the good news!" It is amazing to see lives changed through the power of the gospel!

Michael Cowley with students

Michael Cowley: I preached to a school with 1,400 students, and almost all of them asked Jesus into their heart. When I was finished, a teacher came over to me and began to profusely thank me for bringing the good news to her school. She smiled and said, "I feel so different. I am your new sister!"

Rachel Leftwich: I shared the gospel with a second grade class, and I illustrated how salvation is a gift from God, and you must decide whether to accept or reject this gift. I hardly finished asking them which they would choose, when the entire class was jumping out of their seats crying, "Accept, accept!" I was stunned by their unashamed response to the gospel.

Joseph Schrader with students

Joseph Schrader: We visited a school in a fishing community on the bay, and when we arrived we learned that the high school had two sessions. After talking with the principal, she was so happy we were there that she asked us to do both sessions, plus the college that began after the second session of high school. She also asked if she could make us lunch, to which I eagerly agreed because I love Filipino food! God taught me about giving of myself through this woman's generosity.

Peter Tebow: On the first day of the trip, we met the superintendent for all the schools in the large city of Malolos. He then told us that he had all two hundred teachers gathered for a conference and asked us if we would like to share with them. We quickly accepted, and I was able to share the gospel with them. Over 100 of them raised their hands in front of their co-teachers, to say that they trusted in Jesus. Afterwards, we went to all of the classrooms at this high school and saw nearly 5,000 students trust Christ!
